Workshop: Property Law I

Friday, 26 November (9.00 – 12.00) (all times in CET)

The law of property is under pressure. Different crises in the past decades have brought to the forefront what differences between property systems mean, how pressure requires rethinking of property law and how important it is to move forward rather than return to the old.

Moving forward means inviting new views and new voices into the property law debate. This day of property law is devoted to hearing new voices and widening the conversation with existing members of the research group on property law. Some of these voices will be experienced, others are just beginning their property law ventures. Join us for a day of online property discussions.
